Coasting Schools Category

We have received notification that the Junior School currently meets the government's recently introduced criteria of a "Coasting School".

The government's accountability system already defines a floor standard, the standard below which they consider it is unacceptable for any school to fall even in one year where immediate scrutiny and/or intervention may be needed and the Junior School's data has been above the floor standard for the past three years in a row.

However, the new coasting levels are set at a higher level on the same measure as the floor standards in any given year. A school will be defined as a coasting only where it has been below this level for three years. For 2014 and 2015 a school will fall below the coasting level if fewer than 85% of its pupils achieve Level 4 or above in reading or above in reading, writing and mathematics and below the median percentage of pupils making expected progress. In 2016 the same percentages apply to the number of pupils achieving the "expected" standard in the three core subjects.
